

Protection of Human Rights
within and across the European Union (ProEU)

Professional training course
"European Union practices of protecting human rights in criminal proceedings"

Teachers

Gleb Sintsov

Prof. Dr. in Legal Sciences,
Vice-Rector for International Affairs,
Professor of the Department of
Private and Public Law

Evgenii Bitiutskii

PhD in Legal Sciences,
Associate Professor
of the Department of Law Enforcement

Danil Feoktistov

PhD in Legal Sciences,
Associate Professor
of the Department of
Private and Public Law

Aim:

The professional training course focuses on providing legal professionals, public administrators and civil society representatives with the main human rights trends in criminal proceedings in the European Union, as well as broadening their knowledge and skills and encouraging them to protect human rights in criminal proceedings.

Content:

- Criminal law in the European Union. Criminal justice system in the European Union (4 hours)
- Human rights and criminal procedure in the European Union. European practices of protecting human rights in criminal proceedings (4 hours)
- Mechanism for introducing the best practices in the Russian Federation. Draft regulations on protecting human rights of persons subjected to criminal prosecution (4 hours)
- Presenting and discussing results (4 hours)

Learning outcomes:

On successful completion of the professional training course, the trainees will:

- generalise the provisions of criminal law in the European Union with the view to upholding and protecting human rights
- discover the criminal justice system in the European Union and compare it with the system in the Russian Federation
- analyse the relevant data on criminal procedure in the European Union in terms of human rights
- test the strengths and weaknesses of the European practices for human rights protection in criminal proceedings
- select the reliable guidelines for protecting human rights and adapt them to criminal law in the Russian context
- review the challenges in protecting human rights of persons subjected to criminal prosecution
- integrate the best European practices and mechanisms for the management and administration of justice with the view to human rights

To submit an application to the professional training course please contact ProEU project manager at int_affairs@pnzgu.ru.

This publication reflects the views only of the author, and the European Commission cannot be held responsible for any use which may be made of the information contained therein.

Funded by the European Union